Rosina Andrews

Elite Collaborative Summer School 2020

About

Passionate about exposing young dancers to new techniques and inspiring them beyond their current boundaries, this summer school was created in 2014 for elite young dancers to meet and share experiences and techniques in a non-competitive environment. Rosina has created a summer school that is different from others and explores the necessary elements needed for jazz and contemporary dance as well as complimentary additional skills. Rosina has worked all over the world training some of the best young dancers and felt that a summer school to collaborate them all together would be a good idea. After the immense successes of the last six years the summer school is back again and ready to inspire.

The five days will include not only a selection of different classes from some of the leading teachers in these fields but also a special, unique to Elite Collaborative Summer School, professional masterclasses with some of the leading industry professionals in the contemporary dance field. Those that work with professionals and don't usually offer touring workshops.

Organised throughout the week will be evening activities for the dancers to relax and have fun and get to know each other.

"I just wanted to say that my daughter had the most amazing time. Watching both classes today you could see why. Please thank your faculty for also giving her such a positive and encouraging experience. She learnt so much, in so many disciplines."

Home-stay places are included in the price as dancers offering beds qualify for a discount.
